Government Accountability Office, 2005 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)60378459 Subject: Postal service -- Law and legislation -- United States -- Evaluation. Excerpt: . . . accelerate the diversion of First-Class Mail to other alternatives, thus exacerbating the Services problems in the long run. Uncertainties regarding postal infrastructure: The Service is using an evolutionary approach to develop a more efficient and flexible infrastructure but has disclosed limited information about its overall plans. The Service risks falling short of achieving its goals of rationalizing its infrastructure and workforce and removing excess capacity from its mail processing, distribution, and transportation networks unless it has a clear strategy that includes a comprehensive and integrated plan along with clear criteria as a basis for its decisions, measures to assess the impact of actions taken, and a process for informing key stakeholders, including the Congress. 7 Postal reform is needed to address the following key areas: Key Areas for Postal Reform Mission and role: Congress needs to ( 1 ) clarify the Services mission, because current law has enabled the Service to engage in unprofitable initiatives that are unrelated to its core mission, as well as ( 2 ) clarify the Services role in competing fairly, including its monopoly to deliver letter mail, its authority to regulate the scope of its own monopoly, and other terms of competition. Governance, transparency, and accountability: Congress needs to ( 1 ) delineate public policy, operational, and regulatory responsibilities; ( 2 ) ensure managerial accountability through a strong, well-qualified corporate-style board that holds its officers responsible and accountable for achieving real results; and ( 3 ) define appropriate reporting mechanisms to enhance the Services transparency and accountability for financial and...
